

Te Pānui

Special Edition

FRIDAY 22 MARCH, 2019

Editorial:

Over the last week we've heard from many different people following the attack of two Christchurch mosques. One sentence that has been heard numerous times is "I don't know what to say". This has been a common and understandable feeling across the nation, yet here at SWIS many students have managed to express their feelings either through words or pictures. These have been collected up and will be forwarded on so the outpouring of love from the students of SWIS can be felt by the people who need it most. Today in this special edition of Te Pānui we wanted to share with our community a sample of these. This represents a broad selection of the messages as there are too many to share to everyone.

As a school we joined the nation in observing the two minutes silence. Wednesday's mufti day raised $611 which has been donated to the victims

On Monday the school community came together as a school holding our own bell ceremony. Thank you to all who joined us for this. It is heart warming that despite what has taken place the overwhelming feeling of love and hope has risen to the top.

All the things I would like to say wouldn't fit on the page

You know when you are writing and the words get jumbled in your head?
Well all the well wishes I could give you and the inspiring quotes I could give would not be enough to ease the pain in your hearts or to get you through the hard days or end your grieving.
So I give you a simple message:

Not all of us have a voice in the world
Or a say in what happens
But all of us have a heart.

When something like this happens we reach out,
We work together, we grieve together.

What I am trying to say is that even though a tragedy is sad and hard to get through the amount of love that goes out is unimaginable.

We give all our love to you,
We feel all your pain,
We will help you,
We are together,
We are one.
